BREWERY BROWN

Ex-Pugilist and Boozier

CHAPTER XXI.

BROWN MEETS WITH THE SALVATION ARMY.

HE late landlady had evidently muddled up her mind to give Brown all that was coming to him, and she continued to pour abuse on his head.

"Show it, missus," said Brown. "Give us a drink and less jaw, and I'll think better on yer." "You lazy, good-for-nothing lout!" she said, "why can't you get here on time? I suppose you've been sleeping off the effects of last night's booze? You wretched man, you ought to be ashamed of yourself! The evening's spoilt now, for I can plainly see you are in no state to amuse the company."

But how much more the landlady meant to say will probably never be known, for at that moment an interruption occurred which actually put an end to her scoldings. From across the street came the sounds of a drum being vigorously whacked and a cornet being played.

"What's that?" cried Brown, glad of some excuse to get away from the landlady. He rushed to the door and pushing it open he staggered into the street and began to make his way in the direction whence the sounds proceeded.

"That's the Salvation Army over there," called out one of the men in the bar, "and old Brown's gone to smash on up. Come on boys, let's go and see the fun."

And pell mell out of the pub rushed the crowd expecting to see the bond of Salvationists being chased down the street by the big drunken bully, who was by this time dangerously near the verge of delirium tremens. But things turned out differently to what the crowd expected, for instead of hounding the Salvationists, Brown suddenly took it into his head to start bashing a man who was making fun of them.

"Ullering, a fearful oath, Brown struck out at the fellow and caught him a terrific whack on the head.

"Now, I'll break yer jaw for yer," he said, with another oath. But the man seemed to have no desire for a broken jaw, and turning round he set off down the street at such a lively pace that Brown, drunk as he was, would not catch him. Brown was now in a perfect frenzy, and not knowing what he was doing, he made a dash at the little band of Salvationists. The killing lust was upon him once more, and, completely possessed by the devil, he positively hungered for a victim. As he rushed into the open-air ring striking right and left, and scattering everybody in his path, the Sergeant-Major, a man named Allen, attempted to catch hold of his arm.

Instantly a shriek arose from a woman in the crowd. It was Mrs. Brown. "Gee, if you value your life leave him alone," she cried; "he is in a most dangerous state."

"One look into Brown's glassy and staring eyes convinced the Sergeant-Major of the truth of this statement. Brown's nuddy had his terrible right arm raised to strike down the man who had dared to try to restrain him; in another moment the Sergeant-Major would have laid his insolent hand on the ground with a broken jaw."

But the blow never descended. Quick as a flash the Sergeant-

Major had dropped on his knees. "Oh, God," he prayed, "stay the arm of this poor drunkard and save his soul!"

Brown's arm suddenly became as if paralyzed. He could not strike the blow he had intended. And his fit of frenzy was also over. Pastively he allowed the Salvationists to half carry and half drag him along the street to their meeting-place. And the crowd wondered.

After seeing her husband taken off to the meeting by the Salvationists, Mrs. Brown wearily wound her way homewards in order to put the children to bed. She had a vague idea that something was going to happen something for the better. If she had not been so tired she would have gone to the Army Hall to see what was taking place there; but she was thoroughly exhausted with the day's doings, and after golling the children in bed she could do nothing but sit down and wait for her husband's return.

"Then he stamped out of the Hall, vowing that he would set his foot in again."

Meanwhile Brown had been safely deposited in the Army Hall by his new-found friends. The meeting began, but Brown was unconscious of it for he had fallen into a heavy slumber. He slept right through the meeting, and finally had to be carried to his home.

Of the events of that night he knows nothing, but his wife ac-wards told him that he awoke a raving maniac. She asked him if he would like some breakfast for his supper, and by way of answer he seized the most and hurled it up the chimney. The plate he smashed to pieces, and then he wrested the frying pan out of his wife's hand and dashed it against the wall, breaking the handle off. His next action was a strange one for him, was to turn the tap of the beer barrel that stood in the corner, and to watch the liquid slowly trickle over the floor. Then he lay down beside the cask and once more went off into a drunken slumber.

Poor Mrs. Brown must have thought that the Army meeting thought that the Army meeting had not done him much good. Yet she had a strange feeling that things were going to turn out all right in the end.

At 5 a.m. Brown woke up, sober and in his right mind. He gave one glance around the room, noticed with the aid of a lamp. Brown, contrary to his usual habit, did not have breakfast with the missus. Strange to say he did not crave for beer or morning, but asked for a cup of tea. Instead, Wonderingly his wife poured it out for him.

Then, thinking this a suitable opportunity, she began to talk to him about the misery his drunkenness was causing her and the children. Her words went to the wretched man's heart, and for the next hour his thoughts troubled him exceedingly. Feelings of remorse for his past life took possession of him, and he realized that he had been all too faithless a follower of his father, and had even outstripped him so far as drunkenness was concerned. As he sat in his miserable hamper pondering over his past life in this way a sudden resolve came to him.

"Missus," he called out, "clean up Charlie the best way you can. Mr. and Mrs. Brown are going down to the Salvation Army meeting this morning."

Mrs. Brown wonderingly and joyfully obeyed, and soon Brown and his boy were on their way to the meeting. It was the first time for many years that Brown had entered a place of worship on Sunday, as soon as they were gone Mrs. Brown, with a somewhat lighter heart, began to tidy up the house a bit. Soon there was a knock at the door. She well knew who it was; a caller for his usual Sunday morning drink.

Mr. Brown's gone to the Salvation Army this morning," she said to the astonished visitor as he entered.

"Gone to the Harmer?" exclaimed the man. "Well, I'll be blowed, what next? But he's left some beer I suppose ain't he?"

"Not a drop," said Mrs. Brown. "He emptied the barrel last night and put in an extra two gallons and the sink this morning."

Whatever has happened to him? I don't know but he stayed home to breakfast this morning and told me to say to you he called that there would be no more drink for anyone after this."

"Well, I'm blowed," again ejaculated the man; "he must a' got religion." Then he slouched out of the room.

Other callers came thick and fast, and were equally surprised. Among them were a police inspector and a constable.

Let us now see how it fared with Brown and the Army meeting. They arrived at the Hall before the open-air march came in, so sat down and waited patiently. Soon the sound of the drum and cornet was heard, and the Officers and Soldiers then entered the building and proceeded to the platform. When the band began to play, Brown came and shook hands with him. "Good morning!" he said, "especially you look better this morning."

Brown noticed that a tear glistened in the eye of the under-heralded girl. The kindly greeting and the evident sympathy of the Officer touched poor Brown's heart.

A feeling of a different sort came over him a moment later, as he noticed a former pal of his—Lancashire Bob by name—enter the building.

"The fellow's come in here to kick up a row," he muttered to himself. "Well, alright, let him start and I'll give him all the row he wants." But Brown had another mistake. Poor Lancashire Bob was as deeply convicted of sin as Brown was, and had no more intention of interfering with the meeting than of turning back. That very night he got converted. THE WORLD AND ITS WAYS.

Telegraphy.

One of the marvels of the age is wireless telegraphy. Had it not been for this it is more than probable that the disaster to the Titanic would not have been known for a considerable time, and that fewer of her passengers would have been saved; thus wireless adds another to its triumphs. It first came into great prominence in such matters when the White Star liner "Republic" was in collision with the "Florida" for the lives of some 700 people were saved by the arrival of the "Baltic" on the "Lorraine." It was in answer to the distress signal "C.Q.I." flashed by the "Republic's" Morse-code operator, Jack Binns. A more recent case was that of the P. and O. steamer "Teiki" which sent wireless messages to Gibraltar when she was wrecked; and there have been numerous others.

A Necessity for Passenger Ships.

So necessary has wireless telegraphy become to passenger-carrying vessels that there has already been passed in the United States a law making it compulsory for all American passenger-steamers, and all steamers carrying passengers from the United States to have a wireless installation, if more than fifty persons, including the crew, are carried. Similar legislation has been adopted in France with regard to subsidized ships, by Italy, Spain, and by New Zealand. Great Britain has already moved in the matter. In the last that, in 1910, Sir Pitt Rivers introduced a Bill providing that wireless telegraphy should be obligatory on the part of all passenger steamers.

The inventor of "wireless," Signor Marconi, was born at Bologna, Italy, in 1874. It was in 1895 that he established wireless communication between France and England. Recently, the rise in Marconi shares has been a feature of Stock Exchange business.

Aircraft are Optimistic.

Aircraft are now rapidly learning to travel swiftly and safely through the air, and before long it is confidently asserted regular airship services will be established between various points.

A. V. Roe, one of the best known aviators in England, makes the startling prophecy that the hydro-plane of the future will carry one thousand passengers and revolutionize ocean travel.

He says the speed attainable will be enormous, exceeding 120 miles an hour, and that as the hydroplane will soon be as safe as any human invention can be, it will do away with sea-sickness.

Passengers from New York would be in London within 25 hours.

Lengthy Wireless System.

In the new Pacific Canada will have one of the longest systems of government wireless telegraphy in the world. It will stretch all the way from Port Arthur at the head of Lake Superior to Belle Isle off Cape Race. This system will include a chain of stations, approximately by 150 miles, from Port Arthur to Belle Isle, and stations at the latter point at a special range of communication with Montreal, thus forming up the proposed system with the coast of Canada. Already the proposed scheme is approaching completion, at these points east of Port Arthur the buildings are completed and the apparatus and machinery are going to be installed. These are: St. John's, Miramichi, and Tobique.

Chinese Famine Grows Worse.

Reports of terrible suffering on account of famine are coming from China. Dined at the population in the affected area is said to have died of starvation, and dead bodies are lying along the roadways, and along the ment. The head and bust of King George, wearing the Imperial Crown and the robe of State, with the collar of the Garter, is stamped on one side of the coin, and on the reverse side is a shield bearing the arms of the Dominion of Canada within a wreath of maple leaves, surrounded by the inscription of Canada and bearing underneath the denomination of the coin and the date of issue. The Minister of Finance has previously presented the first gold stock of each denomination to the Victoria Memorial Museum, Ottawa, as likely to be of future historical interest.

A Generous Millionaire.

One of the most remarkable philanthropists of our age is recently passed away at Chicago, in the person of Dr. Pearsons. He gave away during his lifetime nearly five million dollars for educational purposes, and died practically penniless. His gifts were small in comparison with those of some other millionaires, but they were large in proportion to his means. They were veritably the "widow's mite," inasmuch as he gave all he had on his 92nd birthday he declared that he was perfectly happy, and his only regret was that he hadn't been able to distribute ten million dollars instead of five million.

In spite of his wealth he lived an ascetic life, and on one occasion he remarked that he had never seen a horse race or a ball game, and that he was ashamed of himself there. Dr. Pearsons' wife died in 1901. He had no children, and his immediate relatives are well-to-do. He felt that he could give away every dollar he owned without doing any wrong, and that he had a better claim upon him, and in giving he found a delight that was not surpassed by the satisfaction of those to whom he gave.

Airships for War Purposes.

The use of air-ships as weapons of offensive warfare is likely to increase owing to the success of the Italian aviators, are flying in Tripoli. Recently two dirigibles sailed over the Turkish coast and did not cause bomb dropping. The enemy's position had been destroyed.

The European nations are now working up the fact that in warfare of the future airships are likely to play an important part. They are busily engaged in preparing for all contingencies, therefore England, like those who are nevertheless, which will be increased to 100 as soon as a sufficient number of army and navy aircraft have been trained. Even then, however, the British aeronautical service will still be much inferior in numbers and experience to the French service, and some considerable distance behind the German service.

The expenditure of the three countries for this branch of the service is as follows:

France.....	90,250,000
Germany.....	3,500,000
Great Britain.....	1,500,000

France has also 365,000, raised by subscriptions to the National Aviation Fund.

The Commissioner's Bible Readings a Great Blessing and Inspiration.

The Commissioner was nowhere so welcome as at the French Corps, Montreal No. III., where Adjutant Cabrit—who, by the way, has not been all well for the last month or two—is holding on alone. The Adjutant and her faithful comrades greatly appreciated the fact that the Commissioner was able to lead open-air and indoor meetings in the

After he had graduated from the university the young prince entered a regiment of the Guards as a private. He was the only man among the sovereigns and heirs apparent of Europe who served as a simple soldier in the ranks without the slightest distinction from his humbler comrades. He wore the same clothes, lived in the same quarters, ate the same simple and coarse food, used the same rude utensils, tin plate and cup, iron fork and knife, which he shared with his own band, considered the heavy rifle and went through the same routine and training like all the rest. It was only after he

This must, of course, demand special arrangement. To go to the front, he had to be properly equipped. He had received a thorough training that had accepted promotion to the rank of sergeant.

Through marriage King Frederick was connected with most of the royal houses of Europe, Queen Alexandra being his sister. The Salvation Army deeply sympathizes with the bereaved.

At Brockville, which Corps the Commissioner visited this weekend, after a very tough fight, one soul surrendered. The Officer here certainly advertised the meetings well, and we are sure that the effects of the Commissioner's talks with the Soldiers and friends will be seen and felt for months to come. May God bless Commissioner Halliton during the remainder of his tour in East Ontario.

Conducts the T.H.Q. Staff Monthly Meeting at Parliament Street. —The Staff Band Gives an Interesting Programme.

The meeting might well be termed two hours of salvation tollity; yet in everything there was a distinct note of Gospel appeal, which must have made the sinners present think what a genuinely happy crowd salvation lets are. It was this spirit of freedom, this life and joy, that won our International visit Colonel Iliffe, to the Ar he stated later, in the spirit of heaviness to be clad in the garment of praise. The choir sang every ear as he came home every point with a personal application. A short prayer meeting was held by Lieut.-Colonel Pugmire. One comrade came forward to have that blessed spirit about him. Colonel Hiffe had spoken to within his heart.

Two singing open-air meetings were held previous to the inside service. One was led by Brigadier Band; the Chief Secretary, Colonel Hiffe, and T. H. Q. being present. The other was led by the Staff Band. Both were most creditable.

Several Officers in the Hamilton Division are affected by a recent change. Captain Cunningham has been appointed to assistant Adjutant O'Neil at Hesperia; Captain McAmmond to Hailey; Captain Thompson to Hesperia; and Lieut. McAmmond to assist

TENDERS HIS THANKS

Now, dear Comrades, I turn to you with a heart full of deep and tender concern for the salvation of sinners and the advancement of the work we all love so dearly. During the hot summer months, as we are all aware, there is a great tendency to laxity—to slacken a little in our toil for the uncovered. The fact that men and women, who have no serious concern for their souls, hesitate to enter our Halls is one cause of laxity. Then there are the ever-increasing numbers of opiate attractions, worldly pleasures and inducements, which appeal to the people, together with the weariness that often scuttles upon them. All these things would tend to slacken the length the tendencies to slacken for a season our work and labour for souls, but it is not necessary. Dear comrades, people—indeed, and pass into the presence of God in summer as in winter; alas! often unprepared, and I do want that we shall, as a people, stir our hearts up to put forth some earnest efforts, not only to maintain our ground but by means of aggressive measures to advance during this summer in our work of saving the people. If they cannot be induced in any numbers to come out to our Halls, let us plan to make them the very utmost of our opportunities on the street corners and in the squares, or wherever the people congregate. Let us, on every occasion, sing, praying, and preaching, and let us, by the blessing of God, lead to immediate admissions for Christ all the drunkards or unrepentant sinners who are in the centre of the rings.

A little prayerful thought will, no doubt, suggest many plans for reaching the people with the truth during the summer months. I therefore earnestly ask all who have thrown themselves, heart and soul, into the Self-Denial Effort—which, I am quite sure when we come to know the result will bring glory and honor to our God—to throw themselves into the battle and give the best their minds and hearts possess for the development of plans and schemes for reaching the masses during the hot months. My heart goes out to the people. We must get close to and labour for them, especially the neglected and untaught. Seek to save the very worst.

I am turning to you, my comrades — Officers, Local Officers, Soldiers, and Friends—to unite hands and heart and prayers with me for a great spiritual work during the summer months.

I also desire to say: Warten continually over the children and young people. How great and varied are their temptations, and how loud a call this should be to each one of us to be constantly on the watch—leading every opportunity to instruct, to teach, to inspire them, and lead them to decide for Christ.

Remember, I say the Cross adversely, because I know how hard a life of suffering so often appears to the child mind, and understand a religion which has in its substance so much suffering; and it often appeals to them as something else fails—therefore I once more say the salvation and training of the children heavily cannot do without acknowledging my deep indebtedness to all my dear comrades throughout the Dominion for their splendid, whole-hearted co-operation so cheerfully rendered in response to my oft-repeated appeals for the saving of the people many of whom, alas! are still as sheep without a Shepherd. Let us strive individually to walk humbly before God in righteousness and holiness, which is the qualification and power for true usefulness.

With very much love to all, believe me,
Yours in faith affection,
DAVID N. REES,
Commissioner.

Colonel and Mrs. Cuthbert, of London, Eng., arrived in Toronto on Wednesday. The daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Lamb (Katie) accompanied them, and acted as assistant conductor to the party of new-comers which the Colonel and his wife brought over on the "Ascania."

Colonel and Mrs. Nisse arrived in Toronto just as we went to press last week. The Colonel, in his visits to various old comrades at T. H. Q., called at the Editorial Offices to report all's well. The Colonel's appearance did not belie this. He and Mrs. Nisse return to the Old Land on the "Teutonic" on May 18.

Before returning to Toronto from Lethbridge, Lieut.-Colonel Turner called at Calgary, Moose Jaw, and Winnipeg. At Moose Jaw he conducted two meetings, and also received the sad news of the death within one week of both of his sister's children. At Winnipeg the Colonel inspected the Kildenan Industrial Home.

Since returning to T. H. Q. the Colonel has visited Hamilton, where, he informs us, the tenders for the building of the new No. III. H.Q. have been let, and the Army's farm at Clarkson's, where the new residence for Fresh-Air Camp work is being speedily erected. The Colonel states that Bro. Tom Laurie (son of Colonel Laurie of the International Trade Headquarters, London, England, is doing splendidly as an assistant on the farm staff.

Brigadier John McMillan, Secretary for Field affairs in Australia, who has been visiting London, Eng., while on his way to his parents' home in the U. S. A., sails from the Old Land at the end of the week, and will visit Toronto for a short time. The Brigadier is an old Head-Quarter's "boy," and his comrades at T. H. Q. and in the city will be glad to shake his hand once more.

On Sunday afternoon at Simcoe, where Major and Mrs. Miller are booked to lead the week-end meetings, the Major will present to the Corps a new flag which has been purchased and given to the Corps by a number of Officers now in the Field who came out of Simcoe. An example which more of our Officers might do well to imitate.

Brigadier Poller starts on another important business trip to the East on Monday. This time he will visit St. John, N.B., and Halifax.

Brigadier Hargrave represented The Salvation Army at the stone-laying of the new Y. M. C. A. on College Street, Toronto, on Tuesday night, May 14. The Premier, the Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden, K. C., performed the ceremony and gave an address.

Mrs. Brigadier Rawling sails from Southampton on May 17th on the "Ausonia," bringing with her a party of domestics which she will accompany right across the Dominion to Vancouver.

Major McGilivray, of London, was a visitor to T. H. Q. during the week.

BOLINESS.

Tunes.—Lord, I Make, 340; Song-Book, 406.
 1 All I have I yield to Thee;
 Lord, I make a full surrender,
 For Thy love, so great and tender,
 Asks the gift of me.
 Lord, I bring my whole affection,
 Claim it, take it for Thine own;
 Safely kept by Thy protection,
 Fixed on Thee alone.

Chorus:

Glory, glory, hallelujah!
 Lord, my will I here present
 Thee
 Gladly, now no longer mine;
 Let no evil thing prevent me
 Blending it with Thine.
 Lord, my life I lay before Thee;
 Near this hour the sacred vow
 All Thine own I now restore
 Thee,
 Thine for ever now.

Tunes.—Shepherd of Israel, 111;
 Song-Book, 303.

 mine,
 The joy and desire of my heart,
 For closer communion I pine,
 I long to reside where Thou art.

(The pasture I languish to find
 Where all who their Shepherd

 Are fed, on Thy bosom reclined,
 And screened from the heat of the day.)

Ah! show me that happiest place,
 The place of Thy people's abode,
 Where saints in true happiness
 gaze,
 And hang on a crucified God.

Thy love for a sinner declares,
 Thy passion and death on the

My spirit to Calvary bear,
 To suffer and triumph with
 Thee.

3 My heart is fixed, eternal God,
 Fixed on Thee!
 And my unchanging choice is made,
 Christ for me!

Ho is my Prophet, Priest, and
 King,
 Who did for me salvation bring;
 And while I've breath I mean to sing,
 "Christ for me!"

Let others boast of heaps of gold;
 Christ for me!

His riches never can be told,
 Christ for me!

Your gold will waste and wear
 away,
 My portion never can decay,
 Christ for me!

In pining, sickness, or in health,
 Christ for me!

In deepest poverty or wealth,
 Christ for me!

And in that all-important day,
 When I the call of death obey,
 And pass from this dark world
 away,
 Christ for me!

 sounding,
 Christ has suffered on the tree;
 Streams of mercy are abounding,
 Grace for all is rich and free.

 Look to Him Who died for thee.

Now need perish,
 All may live, for Christ has
